FORAKER IN THE FIELD.

The action of the Ohio Republican Convention yesterday indicates that this strong partisan and persistent fighter has lost his hold upon the Republican organization in that State.

No man has been more thoroughly attacked by his political opponents than Foraker, and yet no man has thrived better under abuse.

We do not regard Foraker as an ideal character by any means. He is a politician, and above all things a partisan.

THE RAILROAD WRECK.

The accident on the Pennsylvania Railroad, near Latrobe, yesterday, by which nearly a score were killed or injured, seems from the accounts that are received, to have been an example of the fearful calamities that can result from a very slight oversight.

THE SUPREME CONSIDERATION.

That Crown murder has been productive of many roofcracks, and the last story with reference to the discovery of evidence concerning it, may be not much more authentic than many of its predecessors.

PROTECTION FOR DEMOCRATS.

A singular view of the sugar duty, but that appears to be the regular Democratic one, is set forth by the esteemed Philadelphia Record, which quotes a very outspoken article of the New York Tribune as "showing unusual sagacity in trying to get itself out, and to lead its party out from under the weight of the obnoxious Sugar Trust."

THE TOPICAL TALKER.

A No-Licence Speech—A Good Judge of Oratory—Bridge Approaches—On Still Life Subjects.

"I AM very much inclined to doubt," said a man of high standing in the financial world yesterday, "that the bridge approaches will be a very good argument in favor of hanging our necks promptly after the commission of our deeds."

THE case of young Flann seems to balance pretty closely with the case of the reported prize drawn from lotteries a few months ago, and leave a large balance for the unaccounted for expenditures of the other folks who threw away their money on the lottery swindle.

A FLIPPANT contemporary, in commenting upon the fact that President Harrison declined the other day to let the badge of the Patriotic Sons of America be pinned upon his coat, said: "President Harrison's father was elected to Congress several times as a Know-Nothing."

THE success that has attended the experiment in Allegheny City of drilling artesian wells in the park for furnishing pure drinking water will warrant Pittsburgh in adopting that method to introduce a little vitality in its water supply—when it gets some parks.

A RATHER queer statement was quoted in the House of Lords the other day to the effect that 20,000 tons of bad rum and gin are sold every year along 250 miles of the West African coast by merchants who are alleged to be "excellent men and many of them sincere Christians."

THE way in which the crowned heads of Europe are biting their thumbs at each other, is calculated to arouse the suspicion that they all want to get increased appropriations for their army budgets.

THE appearance of something like typhoid fever at Johnston suggests the possibility that a premature confidante was left in the thorough sanitation of that place. The full development of the illness which has attacked several of the laborers there will be waited for with interest, and in the meantime the precautions against the spread of the disease should be redoubled.

A NEW motor company shows that the day of slow transit in Pittsburgh is rapidly drawing to its close.

THE question whether Senator Chandler's ears were really pulled or not is now occupying columns of editorial discussion between the Atlanta Constitution and the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

DR. LAWMAN and Sheridan, representing the Johnston physicians who are anxious to re-open their practices, suggested to General Harrison that he should visit Johnston.
