Here's Your Chance to Preserve History ...

Help Save The Bandshell

The Roxbury Bandshell, born in the Great Depression, was built as a tribute to the strength of the Johnstown people and their determination to survive the depression and to build a better future.

The magnificent rock-strong bandshell was filled with songs of hope and optimism, where entertainment could uplift people fighting through the economic struggles of their day. Today, the Roxbury Bandshell is an on-going reminder of that past, a remarkable part of our history, a history that is being lost to the wrecking ball ... the Swank Building is gone, Sani-Dairy is gone, the steel mills are gone. And along with them a bit of history, the story of a town. We need to ...

Keep History Alive Keep the Bandshell

The City has given the Roxbury Bandshell Preservation Alliance 18 Months to get the job done. Volunteer work has already begun, but thousands of dollars are needed for equipment, materials and supplies. That job can be done with your help ... quarters, dollars, tens and twenties or more. Just clip and mail.
